Grav Ball Finals Start Sunday

by Anisa Ryken

People across the Confederation have come together to observe the Grav Ball finals this weekend. The final four have proven their talent, and they prepare for this last big event to prove their skills.

The finals begin despite an ongoing corruption investigation in the referees involved in games in the Kied system. The alleged corruption might have allowed the Comets to break into the finals.

Despite these allegations, the teams and the fans are very happy. Over sixty million fans have flooded the system of Alpha Canis Majoris. Government officials of the system have admitted the difficulty in organizing such a major event.

No talk has yet turned to what might happen if the fans turn violent. Everyone recalls the last time the Confederation Grav Ball Finals was held, and the massive riots that occurred as a result.

Confederation Minister of Justice Assassinated

By By Rolph Zimmer

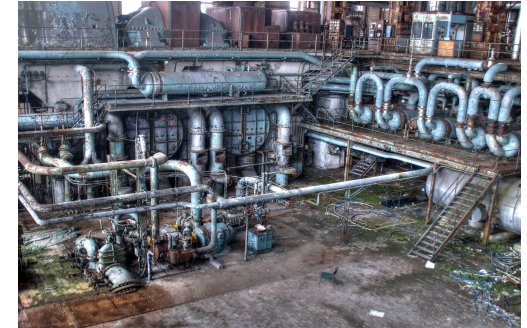

Deitrich Gunter was assassinated in the Centaury Confederacy late last week. Allegedly A rarity among the political elite of the Confederation, Deitrich looked for human rights violations that may have links to his murder. The bullet that killed came from a high powered sniper rifle.

An undisclosed source reported he had uncovered a Centauri lab that used humans illegally as test subjects. A Centuari statement issued by officials stated that this incident has no relation to his murder, but believe that is was random gang violence. Mr. Gunter is survived by his wife of 30 years and two children. His beloved dog Guffie was at the crime scene during the event. The dog ran off after the shooting. Upon his return Guffie had a piece of clothing in his mouth. The police have not said whether or not this is relation to the crime. This looks to be further political infighting among the tyrants who control the Confederation.

Brockman Shipyards Reopen

By Samantha Carsen

CEO Bob Brockman reported today that the family owned super-shipyards would reopen. The announcement came as a surprise, especially given the massive workload of bureaucratic jobs that had swamped the shipyard in overuse over the last ten decade.

The Brockman yards are uniquely situated in at Epsilon Eridani with a plentiful supply of labor, resources and an excellent trade position. Regarding the decision to push through the red tape that has prevented further ship constructions, the Brockman Shipyards gave the following statement:

We like building ships. It's fun, it's what we love to do, and it's what we'll keep on doing until they close us down.
